

CRUSADE

CONTINUING THE CRUSADE

This document is for Crusade players who want to continue using an existing Crusade force for use in the latest edition of Warhammer 40,000, and will give you guidelines on how you can update your Order of battle and Crusade Cards.

To update a unit's Crusade card for the latest edition:

- The first thing to do is to take this opportunity to change its unit size if you wish to, as well as the weapons and wargear they are equipped with – you can do so without using any Requisitions.
- Then, add the points value of your unit, replacing its power level, using the Munitorum Field Manual.
- Your unit keeps the experience points it has accrued, and retains its current rank. However, some of its current Battle Honours and Battle Scars will use rules that no longer work with the new Edition (especially those that were used in the Morale phase, or the Psychic phase; phases of the game that no longer exist!).
- We recommend that when you update a unit's Crusade card, you remove all Battle Honours from your unit; for each one removed you can now select one new Battle Honour for it from any appropriate 10th edition rules available (at the start of the edition, this will be the rules presented in the Tyrannic War Campaign, but see below for details on how to update your Crusade cards at a later date).
 - If a non-CHARACTER unit has more than 3 Battle Honours, you can use the Legendary Veterans Requisition on that unit for free if you wish to.
 - You must then do the same for all Battle Scars your unit has. In both cases, the choice of new Battle Honours and Battle Scars is yours – you can select those that you feel are the closest match to their previous role to maintain the narrative, or select entirely new ones, representing extensive retraining.
- Finally, you calculate their new Crusade points total. After doing so for all the units in your Crusade force that you are updating, change your supply limit to be equal to that of the combined points of all the units on your Order of Battle.

Alternatively, instead of updating a unit's Crusade card now, you can place that unit in stasis until you are ready for it to rejoin your Crusade force. If you do, remove that unit from your Order of Battle, but keep its Crusade card for later. Then, at any point in the future, you can decide to revive that unit and update it using the rules above. You may, for example, choose to wait until a new campaign book is released, or your unit's new codex has been released, or there are some exciting new rules in White Dwarf you want to take advantage of. Whatever the reason, the choice of when to update any of your unit's Crusade cards is up to you; you can update some of them now, and some later, and each time you update one you can then add it back to your Order of Battle as you would add any other unit, ready to continue the Crusade!
